

STARRY NIGHT DRESS

Designer : Marie-Gabrielle Pellerin

Model : Chloe Lenoir

Van Gogh's Starry Night painting is one of my favourite pictures.

The movement inspires me, the light is intriguing and the colors are delightful.

Nevertheless, it has been an evidence for me to choose this work for the fashion show
CreARTivity 2017!

I have decided to focus on two main details : the waves in the sky made with stars, on the front of my dress, and the tree in the first plan, in the back of its.

Moreover, the struck of brush is recaught with the 500 thin newspaper rolls.

I have tried to pay tribute to Van Gogh with the same shape, colors and movement.

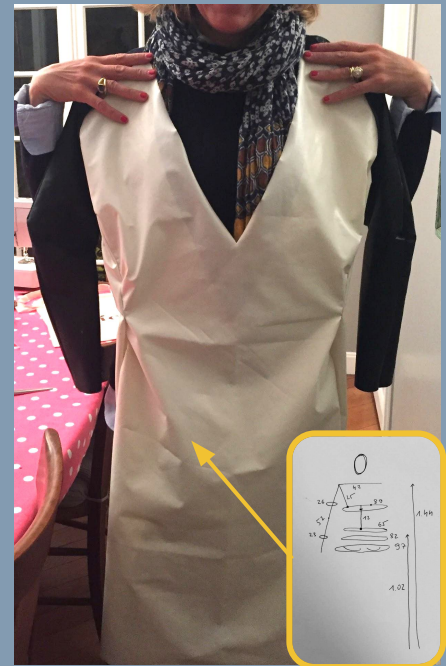

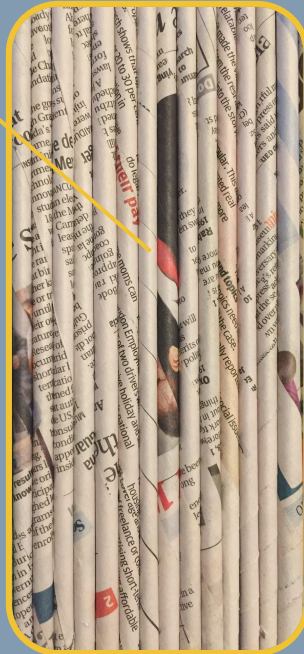

The painting is elegant and, to me, it evokes the dress I made for you.

Finally, the project was very challenging, due to the complexity of techniques, materials and gathering all the elements together. I'm glad to present you my dress tonight !

Front of the dress

Undergarment

Back of the dress

Materials :

- undergarment in plastic tablecloth
- rolled newspaper
- made with velcro, thread, metal wire and sometimes with a sewing machine